A NOTE ABOUT TAX LEVIES

It is budget time and that means a discussion on income for the library, which is primarily through the property tax system. Property tax is a local tax imposed by local government taxing districts with the concurrence of the voters and administered by local officials.

The property tax system can be confusing to people. There are voter approved tax rates, tax caps and there is the tax levy. During the levy process, taxing districts determine the total amount of revenues that they need to raise from property taxes, hold any required Truth-in-taxation hearings, and certify levies to the county clerk. The tax levy is based on the total tax in the district. If new tax sources become available, a levy may be increased without an existing individual property owner seeing any increase in their tax. To help our patrons understand this issue better, we have added a Tax Levy FAQ link to our website at www.caryarealibrary.org/taxlevyfaq.
