

A close-up photograph of a vibrant pink zinnia flower. The flower has numerous overlapping petals in a rich magenta-pink color. In the center, there are several small, bright yellow flower heads. The flower is set against a background of large, healthy green leaves, suggesting it is growing in a garden.

A letter from our new Executive Director

Ashley Huffines

“ As Executive Director, my goal is to support and strengthen the excellent work already being done while also listening carefully to your ideas and needs. ”

My name is Ashley Huffines and I'm honored to introduce myself as the new Executive Director of the Cary Area Public Library.

Having completed my first month in this role, I want to take a moment to share my gratitude and reflect on what has already been an inspiring beginning. Over the past several weeks, I've had the opportunity to meet with our dedicated staff, volunteers, and community partners. I'm impressed by the passion and care that go into making this Library a welcoming and meaningful space for everyone. It is clear that this Library is more than a building and is a cornerstone of our community. As Executive Director, my goal is to support and strengthen the excellent work already being done while also listening carefully to your ideas and needs. I am committed to ensuring that our library continues to serve all members of our community for another 75 years.

Thank you for the warm welcome I have received during my first month. I look forward to getting to know more of you in the weeks, months and years ahead as we work together to shape a strong, vibrant future for the Cary Area Public Library.

Our CAPL 75th anniversary celebrations continue this spring. Our year-long Diamond Reading Challenge has begun and you'll notice some events throughout this newsletter tie in the anniversary: the Peeps Diorama Contest and a Nature Journaling class for children among them. We'll also be hanging a CAPL history timeline + photo display along our back wall in March. Be sure to stop in and see it! Visit caryarealibrary.org/75years for details.

Library Updates

We've expanded the fiction Adult New Book Area into the nook. Books won't be as tight as they have been these last few years, there is more room for books to face out, and the area is a little larger to allow more room for browsing.

Palace Project Digital Collection

The Palace Project app has replaced the discontinued Boundless app after their parent company, Baker & Taylor, abruptly closed this past fall. The same collection on a new platform!

On the Palace Project app, access thousands of free books with your CAPL card. Read or listen to titles for all ages in an easy-to-use interface. We know that the Libby app is popular, but don't sleep on this service, which can supplement your access to ematerials.

New Catalog Interface Coming this Spring

Our catalog consortium with 30+ other libraries will be implementing a new catalog interface this spring, which is tentatively scheduled to go live Tuesday, May 19.

This will mean changes to some features like your account, searching the catalog, and placing holds. Stay tuned for more information as the date approaches on our website and in the summer newsletter.

Coming Soon: Learning Garden

We will be installing a Learning Garden in our "backyard." We'll conduct events and classes in and around it, as well as opening it up for volunteer opportunities and building a community of growers! More details to come in our summer newsletter.

Seed Library

Opens March 9 • caryarealibrary.org/seedlibrary

What it is

We make a wide variety of seeds available to CAPL cardholders for free to grow at home. Growing helps increase biodiversity in our area, increases health benefits to our patrons, and allows you to save money in the process.

How it works

Visit our website to view our 2026 seed catalog in early March. Each household may request up to 10 non-duplicate seed packets from a variety of fruits, vegetables, herbs, and flowers. Each seed type has a corresponding number, so when placing your order, you can easily indicate your choices by number instead of by name. Please note that the links in the seed catalog go to outside sources and are for growing reference only—you do not place an order through those sites for our seeds. Duplicate orders from households will not be honored.

Beginning Monday, March 9 at 9 am, the order form will open online, and be available at the Service Center. Once you've placed your order, we'll pack it within four business days and notify you when it is ready for pickup (emails will come from the Seed

The first 75 people who place a Seed Library order will receive an extra seed packet to celebrate our 75th anniversary!

Library so be sure to watch your junk folder!) We'll hold your order for four days. On Friday, May 29, the order form will close. Any remaining seed packets will be available in the Library for cardholders to grab beginning Monday, June 8. Visit our website for all important information about ordering: caryarealibrary.org/seedlibrary

Bond Over Books

Talk to your child(ren) about what they're reading.

Bonding over books is an excellent way to develop a lasting and meaningful relationship with the children in your life. Bond over favorites from your childhood; identify shared experiences between you, the child, and the book characters; help to open up discussion about tough topics; and just understand what they're reading and taking away from those books. It's good for you, it's good for them.

In early childhood, talking with your children about what they're reading is more about helping them learn to read and get ready to begin school. As children start to read on their own, you can keep the conversation going by asking questions that are open-ended, such as "What did you like and dislike about the book?" Then, as they become even more independent as tweens and teens, you can expand the discussions with deeper questions, like "What are the overarching themes of this book?"

Don't worry—we've prepared prompts for parents/caregivers for this very reason. Find them as a handout in the Children's Area or online at kids.caryarealibrary.org/parentprompts
